Evaluation

Evaluation is the process of analyzing assessment data and making decisions about student progress and instruction based on the results. Assessment methods and their use in the classroom must be fair and equitable for all students. Evaluation provides essential information to students, teachers, parents and administrators. All assessment and evaluation activities must reflect the specific learning outcomes of the Intermediate Core French Program.

In the Intermediate Core French program, student evaluation respects the following principles:

1. Evaluation is an integral part of the teaching and learning process.
2. Tasks reflect the prescribed outcomes and the types of learning activities regularly used in the classroom. Evaluation is criterion-referenced; students are assessed on the achievement of the outcomes. Sixty percent (60%) of the Intermediate Core French program is devoted to oral communication and forty percent (40%) to written communication; this same balance needs to be maintained in evaluation.
3. Evaluation is both planned and ongoing.
4. Students know when, how, and on what criteria they are being evaluated; the evaluation plan is communicated to students and parents at the beginning of the year. It is flexible enough to account for student progress throughout the year, but structured enough to provide a clear picture of how students will be assessed. Students are provided the opportunity to demonstrate the knowledge, skills, attitudes or behaviors they have learned.
5. Evaluation includes both formative and summative components.

Formative Evaluation
Formative evaluation improves student performance through continuous, precise, and clear feedback directly related to the task. Formative evaluation assists the teacher and student to identify areas where additional work is required. Teachers adjust instruction to accommodate these needs. It is this assessment of learning that determines classroom practice.

Summative Evaluation
Summative evaluation involves making judgments. It is the assessment for reporting purposes at the end of a particular instructional period. Reporting may be anecdotal or by means of a letter or number grade. Schools and school districts have policies on assessment, evaluation and reporting which serve to guide the development of an evaluation plan.
Evaluation includes a variety of assessment techniques.

Assessment is the systematic process of gathering information on student learning and performance. A variety of assessment techniques ensure comprehensive and consistent indicators of student performance are used.

Assessment

Common assessment techniques of an evaluation plan are:

Questioning
Effective questioning provides opportunities to extend students’ thinking through immediate feedback. Questioning has to be more than requiring an answer quickly without thought, or asking for memorized facts. Questions exploring issues critical to understanding need time for response, sufficient for students to think and to formulate appropriate responses. Students should be expected to answer and to contribute to the discussions. Therefore, all answers, right or wrong, give information useful to developing understanding.

Projects
Communicative/experiential projects may be used to assess outcomes. Students engage in a series of activities during the unit to complete a project. The project is based on selected outcomes and encourages students to link life experiences to the assigned task. For example, the production of a travel brochure to a French-speaking country, or creating a presentation about one’s family might be experiential projects related to Family and Home and Holidays and Travel themes.

Observation
Observation provides information on what students do. For formal observation, the teacher establishes criteria, communicates this information to students in advance of the activity, and provides feedback to student(s) as soon as possible following the activity. For example, in observing a role play, the teacher would establish criteria, and at the end of the activity, provide feedback to students based on those criteria. The teacher may use a checklist, a rubric or a rating scale to record information.

Informal observation is also an effective way of monitoring student competency skills. It enables teachers to determine what students know and are able to do, thus guiding teaching. It is also an effective way of monitoring and recording student use of French. Being informally observed on a regular basis makes students accountable for their participation in class and for their learning.
Interviews
Interviews are essential components of regular class and assessment activities. Formal student-teacher interviews follow the recommended procedure: warm-up questions, probing questions, and cool down questions. Items related to the themes are discussed and treated known vocabulary and language. The teacher observes students as they interview each other and rubrics are used to provide feedback to students on their progress.

Oral reading may be a component of regular classroom activities and the interview process. Passages related to the themes of the Program enable teachers to verify student comprehension.

French is the language of the classroom, therefore teachers record students’ efforts to speak.

Tests/Quizzes
Tests or quizzes integrate skills such as listening and reading comprehension. Items are familiar to the students, and examples are provided. Tests may include listening and reading selections, matching, selected response (multiple choice), constructed response and similar items. Selections include narrative, informational, and visual texts.

Portfolio
A portfolio is a collection of work samples: projects, writing pieces, workbook pages and audio or video recordings. Items may be kept in an exercise book, a folder or a binder. As students create their portfolios, they are encouraged to evaluate their work.

A portfolio is a source of qualitative assessment information collected over time providing students an opportunity to reflect upon their experiences and achievement, and to take more responsibility for their learning. The purpose of a portfolio determines the length of time it is kept and the type of items included. For example, it may be for a unit, the school year, or over the three years of the Intermediate program.

Portfolios allow teachers, parents and students to see, almost at a glance, the progress of the student.

Self- and peer assessment
Self- and peer assessment are important components of formative evaluation. Self-assessment is essential to learning since students only achieve a learning goal if they understand the goal and can assess what needs to be done in order to achieve it. Peer assessment helps students accept constructive criticism from one another. Peer assessment gives learners a variety of responses to their work and, like self-assessment, provides the teacher with information on how to improve activities. (Elementary Core French Curriculum Guide, Prince Edward Island, 2000.)

Self-assessment encourages students to:
- reflect;
- identify their progress;
- focus on areas needing improvement;
- plan and organize to accomplish a task.

For self- and peer assessment, students need the skills required for self- and peer assessment and models of the responses expected of them. For example, the teacher needs to review the statements on a rating scale or a checklist, before starting a task.

Using Rubrics

Rubrics are performance criteria used to score or rate student work. Rubrics benefit teachers, students and parents. For teachers, rubrics increase consistency and accuracy in assessment. For students, rubrics help to understand the stated expectations and receive specific feedback on each of the criteria for the task. For parents, rubrics enable them to closely monitor student progress.

Rubrics range from simple to complex in design. For example, checklists, rating scales, and scoring grids can be used as rubrics. Rubrics are often used in conjunction with other assessment techniques.

Evaluation Resources

The Assessment Toolkit: Formative Assessment Instruments for FSL. (Beginner, Intermediate, Advanced Level). The assessment activities contained in this kit are thematically organized, are based on the experiential/communicative approach, and respond to the learning outcomes identified in Core French programs across the country.
